ZEPPELIN HOLDS UP DUTCH LINER HELENA

FRENCH STEAMSHIP TORPEDOED; NORWEGIAN SHIP STRIKES MINE

REPORT JURY WAS 10 TO 1 FOR 'TOODLES'

The jury in the $50,000 breach of promise suit of Elizabeth M. "Toodles" Ryan against Harry K. Mansfield, proprietor of Ferncroft Inn, after being deadlocked for more than twenty-four hours, reported a disagreement to Judge Fessenden this afternoon.

After thanking the jurors, Judge Fessenden told them that they were discharged. The jury had been out exactly twenty-four hours and forty-two minutes.

FAMOUS TRIAL CLOSED.

This closed the famous trial, which has lasted seven weeks and which was filled with sensational testimony.

Rumor had it that the jury had stood ten to one in favor of Miss Ryan, with one juror not voting.

The jury came in at 12:22 to report that it had finally "agreed to disagree." This was forty minutes after Judge Fessenden from the bench had appealed to them to "try once more" to see if they could not reach an agreement.

When the jury filed into the court-room for the last time, Clerk Gilchrist asked:

"Gentlemen, have you reached a verdict?"

Foreman Everett Morss replied:

"We have not."

Judge Fessenden then said:

NO CHANCE TO ARGUE.

"I gather from your facts, gentlemen, that there is no prospect of an agreement. There is no use of your considering this case any more."

The twelve jurors bowed their heads in assent.

"I thank you, gentlemen, for your duty so splendidly performed. There are cases where you cannot agree. This is a case of that kind evidently.

"I hope that you will suffer no ill effects. Of course this is disappointing, but it cannot be helped.

"This is one of the cases where there can be a shonest difference of opinion. I know that you have served most patiently. Now you go home and get a good rest. You are all tired.

"I hope that you will have pleasant recollections of each other, the court and the attorneys. I thank you once again for your sincere endeavors. You are now relieved from further duty."

At this moment Juror Hugh P. McNally of Dorchester leaned over to Foreman Morss. A moent later the foreman said:

"May it please your honor, what are our conditions and what are we to do about talking? Are we restricted?"

Judge Fessenden replied:

"Don't tell anybody. The jury room is locked. What goes on in there no one is to know but yourselves. It is a secret place.

"Don't let one word out as to what

Report 5 Russian Corps Wiped Out

BERLIN, Feb. 19, (by wireless)—Further reports concerning the German victory in the Masurian Lakes district make it apparent that the Russian defeat was severe. It was officially stated here today that it may be doubted whether much remains of about five Russian corps.

The following statement was issued by the official German news bureau in this connection:

"While they may have saved much of their artillery through their quick retreat, it seems certain that at least 150,000 Russian troops are no longer to be reckoned with."

The clearing of Bukowina of the enemy means a Russian defeat on the other extreme wing of operations. All this, together with the results expected from the operations in the waters around the British Isles, inspired general confidence.

Trial for Treason Bores Gen. DeWet

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa, Feb. 19.—General Christian DeWet, the leader of the rebellious Boers, who is on trial here for treason, is taking his situation coolly. Although facing death if found guilty, DeWet seems bored rather than interested in the evidence. The testimony shows that DeWet and his followers had counted upon a general uprising in South Africa.

One Year of Peace to Fifteen of War

PARIS, Feb. 19.—The Temps, commenting on the action of the recent Socialist congress in London, warns people against the idea that war can be abolished. It says: "Statistics show that from 1496 B. C. to 1861 A. D. there were 227 years of peace and 3,130 years of war; that is, one year of peace to fifteen of war."

Rate on American War Risk Jumps

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Following the publication of Germany's reply to the United States Lloyd's rates today on the risk of war between the United States and Germany in six months were 20 guineas per cent. A month ago the risk was 5 guineas per cent. other rates were unchanged.

Spanish Bonds to Meet Deficit

MADRID, Feb. 19.—A government decree authorized an issue of $20,000,000 treasury bonds to cover the budget deficit of the past year.

DUTCH LINER HELD UP AT SEA BY ZEPPELIN

LONDON, Feb. 19.—That Germany has carried out her threat to use the Zeppelins in her "starvation" campaign against England was definitely confirmed today by dispatches from Rotterdam telling how the Dutch steamship Helena was held up by the Zeppelin L-5 in the North Sea, probably the first time in war history that such an incident has occurred.

Copenhagen cables that a big German Zeppelin was sighted from the Danish frontier last night flying westward. It is believed she came from a German port on the Baltic. Other Zeppelins were seen over Schleswig-Holstein proceeding toward the North Sea today.

Two Zeppelin airships of the fleet that the Germans are using to patrol the North Sea and to fish in submarines word of the approach of cargo ships have already been wrecked upon the coast of Denmark.

With the war-zone proclamation in effect less than two days, the Germans have thus suffered a monetary loss of $600,000, the cost of the Zeppelins lost off Denmark, not having been less than $300,000 each.

TELLS OF ENCOUNTER.

The best description of the steamer Helena incident was given by the correspondent of the Daily Express, who telegraphed as follows from Rotterdam:

"The captain of the Dutch steamship Helena has just described to me how his ship was held up forty miles from Haaks lightship, in the North Sea, by a German airship which descended near the sea and hoisted signals ordering the steamer to halve to.

"The Helena was overhauled by Zeppelin L-5 at 10 a. m. The morning was clear and in the sunshine the airship was seen at a great altitude approaching swiftly from the direction of the coast and rocking like a schooner in a rough sea. It flew directly over the Helena, whose crew distinctly saw fifteen or twenty persons in its three cars, which were connected by a covered gangway. The men were dark, close fitting tunics, caps like hoods and goggles.

"They watched the Helena through glasses in a kind of a turret forward. The crew of a quick firing gun were at their stations and a great naval ensign flew at the stern of the gas bag.

"The airship circled the Helena twice, then appeared to be satisfied and after exchanging signals returned in the direction of the coast."

According to dispatches from Copenhagen, the Zeppelin wrecked off Esjberg was the L-4, whose sister ship, the L-3, was destroyed on Fanoe Island the day before. The L-4 was in command of Captain Count Platen-Halleman. Four of her crew are missing.

HOW THE DUTCH ANSWER THE KAISER'S WAR ZONE THREAT AND SAIL IN DEFIANCE OF SUBMARINES

Photograph received by International News Service.

Immediately on receipt of a copy of the German warning to neutrals, the Dutch government adopted the policy of painting in huge white letters on the sides of all Dutch ships the name and port of the vessel, so that there could be no excuse for sinking the ship thus distinguished. In this way the Dutch government expects to be able to hold Germany responsible for any disaster to Dutch shipping due to the Kaiser's submarine raids. The photograph, by the International News Service, is a typical result of the Dutch action proclaiming a ship's strict neutrality. The name was painted on before the Prinz Willem V sailed from Hoboken for Rotterdam on February 18.

Rumor Naval Battle Imminent in Pacific

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 19.—A battle between two Japanese cruisers and three German warships off the coast of Lower California is imminent, according to reports current here. It is also rumored that a Japanese gunboat was wrecked in a fog while attempting to intercept a vessel carrying supplies to the Germans from the coast.

United Fruit Liner Disabled at Sea

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The United Fruit liner Santa Marta is off Cape Hatteras in a heavy sea with rudder damaged and in need of immediate assistance. A wireless message from Captain Davidson of the steamship was received at the home offices of the company today. Revenue cutters are hurrying to her aid from Norfolk. The Santa Marta left Colon for New York on Feb. 11. she has a tonnage of 3,126 and is one of the fastest of the Great White fleet.

A CURE FOR OLD AGE!

In Sunday's American

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Ambassador Page at London today cabled the State Department that the British Admiralty had suspended all travel between England and the continent of Europe until further notice.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The first victim of the German submarine warfare on the shipping of Great Britain and her allies since the war zone proclamation went into effect is the French steamship Dinorah, which was torpedoed today without warning by one of the Kaiser's submarines a few miles from the French port of Dieppe.

This evening's dispatches from Havre say that the German torpedo boat failed to sink the ship, but stove in a plate on the port side below the water line. The steamer was kept afloat by her crew at the pumps and was towed into Dieppe.

The Dinorah, which is a vessel of 2,962 tons, was bound from Havre for Dunkirk when she was attacked by the submarine believed to be the U-16, which sank the steamer Ville De Lille on Tuesday.

Several fishing boats were in the vicinity when the Dinorah was attacked. These fled into Dieppe and assistance was promptly sent to the Dinorah.

Word was also flashed to the French naval base at Cherbourg and a fleet of French destroyers was dispatched from that port in a search of the German submarine.

Closely following the disaster to the Dinorah, the Norwegian tank steamer Belbridge struck a mine off Dover. The Belbridge was bound from New Orleans to Amsterdam. Her crew was rescued and will proceed to Amsterdam. This is the first neutral vessel reported to have suffered damage since the war zone proclamation went into effect.

Shipping activities went on as usual today despite the German menace at most of the British ports. Liverpool, Newcastle, Sunderland, Hartlepool, Yarmouth, Hardwich, Middlesborough, Grimsby and South Shields reported conditions were undisturbed.

A lifeboat picked up early today on Goodwin Sands has been identified as coming from the Spanish steamer Horacio, which left Bilboa a week ago for Hartlepool. It is feared that she is the victim of a mine or torpedo.

The Scandinavian-American liner United States sailed for New York from Copenhagen today on schedule time. There was no sign of nervousness among her 400 passengers, though the vessel, if she follows her usual course, will cross the German zone.

All Spanish vessels were notified by their government today to stop and deliver their papers as soon as they are signalled by a submarine in their own or French waters.

The German submarine U-2, which sank the British warship Pathfinder and also [illegible] to British merchantships in the Irish Sea, has returned unde[illegible]ged to the base at Wilhelmshaven, Berlin, reports say.

ENGLAND PREPARING RETALIATION AGAINST GERMAN SEA RAIDS

British Press Unanimously Condemns Kaiser's Attitude on the United States.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Retaliatory methods to be used by England against Germany are still under consideration by the government. No statement is to be issued until all phases of the situation have been considered by King George and the Privy Council.

The British press is unanimous in condemning the German reply to the American note, and asserts that its effects will be still further strengthening of the ties between England and the United States. At the same time the London papers point out that the German blockade, warn their readers that it is too early to tell whether or not Germany will carry out its threats against England.

On this point the Pall Mall Gazette says:

"We attach no significance to the fact that February 18 passed without apparent results from the German threat. It is yet much too soon to conclude. The past has shown that those who are in the best position to gauge the facts and have the most at stake, hold the German threat very cheap.

ULTIMATUM TO U. S.

The Pall Mall Gazette then comments as follows on the German reply to the United States:

"It is difficult to imagine a more exasperating document than the German reply to the note of the United States. The note of moderation and desperation which runs through the document is most satisfactory to us.

"The point which calls attention to the heroic government has presented a veiled ultimatum to the United States. 'There is not the slightest likelihood that President Wilson will be caught in this insidious trap, set to lure the United States into an ally of Germany.'

"The American people seem to entertain no doubt that the German method of conducting the war is a threat to the whole world," says the Westminster Gazette.

MERCHANT MARINE UNAFRAID.

"The merchant marine goes its way with perfectly callous disregard of the grounds of being terrified," says the Evening Standard. "News from the ports shows that the Teutonic ocean has not yet frightened. It is unpleasant to know that you may be blown out of the water at any moment, but the realization does not seem to affect the marines of England any more than Germany's threats affect the rest of the population."

The Globe says:

"One of the most pleasant features of recent events has been the attitude towards this country of practically all the best elements of American civilization, especially the literary and military classes."

PRESIDENT TAKES UP GERMAN REPLY WITH THE CABINET

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The most important Cabinet meeting in many months was held today in President Wilson's library, and the clean-cut issue between the United States and Germany over the war zone declaration practically won the safe applause of discussion.

The German reply to the American protest was dissected and it is understood the course of action and policy for the United States to follow in the event that German submarines sink an American steamship was gone into.

It is not expected there will be any further communication between Germany and the United States on the war zone for the present. The prevailing temper of mind in Washington today was that this government would face the possibility of being drawn into the European conflict if a ship being sunk. Most officials, however, refuse to believe that Germany will permit any American ship to be torpedoed, because of the consequences of such an act.

Administration officials cannot find the slightest concession to the United States in the German reply to the American protest. They believe that it pushes the warning even stronger for all neutral vessels to keep out of British waters.

It is stated that American consuls are sending reports to the State Department of a shortage of food supplies in both Austria and Germany, and that the situation is bad in the former country. These are believed to show the reason for Germany's recent measures of retaliation.

The reports are unverified, but it is understood in official circles here that the supply of foodstuffs in the German provinces is not nearly so large as represented. Because of this the theory is held in Washington at the present time that Germany intends to put up a desperate fight for the next two or three months, with the hope of drawing the other nations into the conflict, and then in view of the hopeless nature of the struggle, ask for peace.

White House and State Department officials are confining their entire attention to the developments which may come regarding the "war zone" and are giving no attention to these suggestions.

GERMAN NEWSPAPERS CAUSTIC IN CRITICISM OF THE UNITED STATES

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Feb. 19.—Germany's reply to the United States is indorsed today by all the Berlin newspapers, which also continue their criticism of American "un-neutrality." This is based upon the pointed statement by the government that the allies are being furnished with weapons and munitions of war by American concerns.

The Post is particularly caustic in its comment on Americans, saying:

"When something does not suit the bankers' business, they are used to using as a threatening buzzaboo as great a sabre-rattling noise as possible. They calculate on the State thus obtained creeping promptly to heel. If this effect is not produced, if the threatened State pays no attention, and shows it cannot be bluffed, the tipping path of the Yankees soon 'quiet down.'"

Count Von Reventlow, naval critic of the Tages Zeitung, shows more than usual bitterness today. He says in his article that "America is trying to speak to Germany in an altogether unsuitable way. She has grown accustomed to dealing with Mexican pretenders."

The Vossische Zeitung says editorially:

"The new German measures on the sea are directed against two allies of Great Britain. One is the American traffic in arms, the other is starvation. We need no American arms to struggle with the allies. We can live even if not a single grain of wheat reaches us, while Great Britain must experience most severe damage if our blockade succeeds."

The Lokal Anzeiger comments upon the situation as follows: "February 18 was the beginning of a defensive fight by a people threatened with starvation. A people which must fight for its existence, must and will push aside all consideration as to third parties' attitude toward us. The fight we are entering must be fought with all recklessness, or not at all. We Germans are resolved to fight without regard to the consequences. Nothing has been heard from our official circles as to what will happen in the event of our victory. Deeply rooted in our people is an humble conviction that victory lies in God's hands. We await the decision of Providence. Difficult will be the fight, perhaps, and long also, for the enemy will not shrink from any means in order to frustrate our efforts."

170 SHIPS WITH AMERICAN CARGOES NEARING WAR ZONE

From the chief Atlantic ports, exclusive of New York, there are, in round numbers, 170 vessels bearing American cargoes valued at over a hundred millions of dollars bound for foreign destinations which compel them to enter the new German war zone and subject them to the peril of submarine attack.

The principal ports report the following clearances: New Orleans, thirty; Baltimore, forty-one; Galveston, ten; Philadelphia, eighteen; Norfolk, forty-nine; Boston, seven; Charleston, twelve; Savannah, two.

Included in this number are two regular passenger carriers from Philadelphia. The Pretorian, another passenger vessel, sailed yesterday from Boston for Glasgow.

Vessels now on the way from southern ports carry huge cotton cargoes. From New Orleans thirty ships at least, are bound across the Atlantic laden with cotton, provisions, horses and mules.

The shipments from New Orleans alone are valued at millions of dollars.

Baltimore has sent large general cargoes. It is estimated that forty-one vessels are now on the way to the war zone from that port.

In nearly every case the ships are laden with grain and food supplies, horses, mules, and, in not a few cases, war munitions for the allied nations. The total value of the cargoes may reach $125,000,000.

Where German and U. S. Notes Clash

WILSON'S WARNING.

If such a deplorable situation should arise (the destruction of an American ship) the imperial government can readily appreciate that the government of the United States would be constrained to hold the imperial government of Germany to a strict accountability for such acts of their naval authorities and take any steps it might be necessary to take to safeguard American lives and property and to secure to American citizens the full enjoyment of their acknowledged rights on the high seas.

GERMANY'S ANSWER.

Neutral vessels which, despite the ample notice which greatly affects the achievement of our aims in our war against Great Britain, enter these closed waters, will themselves bear the responsibility for any unfortunate accidents that may occur. Germany disclaims all responsibility for such accidents and their consequences.

German Air Raid on Belfort Fails

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 19.—German aviators attempted to blow up the French forts at Belfort with bombs on Wednesday, but were driven off by the batteries there. They later dropped three bombs upon the railway station near Montbellard. Several civilians and soldiers were killed, but small property damage was done.

An attempt was made to destroy the Viellard Iron Works at Mesiry, which have been turned into a gun manufacturing plant. German aircraft dropped thirty bombs, but none of them caused serious damage.

ALEXANDER TO PLEAD MONDAY

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Miss Jessie Elizabeth Cope, complaining witness against Colonel Charles A. Alexander, Chicago Inland millionaire, under indictment for alleged violation of the Mann Act, visited the office of United States District-Attorney Charles F. Clyne yesterday to learn the cause for the apparent delay in the trial of the case.

She was informed that Colonel Alexander was out on bonds and would appear before Federal Judge George Carpenter next Monday to enter a plea.

NEW SERUM MAY BE CANCER CURE

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. — Several physicians, surgeons and laboratory workers of international reputation, who are interested especially in the study and treatment of malignant disease, have been engaged for nearly a year in carrying out a new procedure in cancer cases at the General Memorial Hospital, Ore Hundred and Sixth street and Central Park West.

The medical men believe that they have effected cures in a considerable number of cases that had failed to respond to all other known methods of treatment. Moreover, they feel that a sufficient number of patients have shown the beneficial effects of the treatment to warrant the belief that it is of permanent value, and will have a wide application in the variety and physical distribution of malignant growths that may be attacked successfully.

The therapeutic agent employed is a serum of a kind never before used. When the necessary laboratory experiments to determine its efficacy were completed and after it was used in the hospital, it was employed with equal success in private practice.

All, or nearly all, of the cases in which it was used were o fthe kind called inoperable. That is, the patients were in a hopeless condition from the standpoint of the surgeon. They were merely scraps of humanity in whom the knife, the X-rays, radium and other serums had failed to effect more than temporary relief or improvement. Some of the patients treated with the new serum have exhibited no signs or symptoms of malignancy for many months.

It is expected that within a short time the Medical Board of the institution will publish an official report containing the name of the discoverer of the new serum, its composition, the details of the preliminary laboratory work, and the individual medical histories of the patients so far treated in the hospital.

WAITT ASKS NEW LOVE SUIT TRIAL

Attorney Chester W. Ford, counsel for Albert F. Waitt, the Newton millionaire, against whom a $75,000 verdict was returned by the jury which heard the evidence in the Herrick-Waitt $75,000 alienation suit, will enter a motion for a new trial before Judge White in the East Cambridge Superior Court today.

Attorney Ford, commenting on the verdict, said: "It was a big surprise to both myself and my client."

It is understood this motion will be based on the forty-two exceptions taken by Attorney Ford during the trial just ended.

The close of the trial was marked by the dramatic arrest on a warrant of young Herrick, the plaintiff, as he was leaving the court building. The warrant was secured by Harry Hurbro, a Boston tailor, who alleges that Herrick owes him $41.

Herrick was later arraigned before Judge Walcott in the Third District Court, Cambridge. He was discharged from custody upon taking oath he would not leave the State while the settlement of the bill was pending.

Save U. S. Consul from Firing Squad of Carranza Men

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—That W. O. Jenkins, consular agent of the United States at Pueblo, Mex., was confronted by a firing squad of Carranza troops, who were about to execute him is revealed by the State Department. Strong representations on the subject, as yet unanswered, were promptly made to General Carranza. Jenkins was saved by a superior Carranza officer.

Maine Move for Mothers' Pensions

AUGUSTA, Me., Feb. 13.—An act providing for mothers' pensions was presented in the Legislature today by Senator Aaron B. Cole of York county. This act would give the mothers of the poor in any city or town the right to provide aid to mothers with dependent children under the age of fifteen years. If a mother has one child under fifteen years of age she is to receive not more than $5 per week, while a further warrant to the value of $2 per week is provided for each additional child, but the total weekly amount must not be over $15.

CHINESE SECRET OVER JAP PLANS

PEKIN, Feb. 13.—A crisis is said to exist [illegible] owing to the alleged refusal of Japan to withdraw her troops from Shantung province [illegible] negotiations are being hopefully conducted.

It is learned that Germany will demand 16,000,000 taels from China when that State was taken from the Germans. It is charged by the Japanese that German government property had fraudulently been transferred to civilians and such pieces of property were taken over by the Japanese war office.

How to Fight Tuberculosis

In a paper read last year before the Bexar County Medical Society and published in part in the Louisville "Medical Progress," Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, a physician who has devoted much time to the study of tuberculosis, said: "Since lime salts constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplemented in mineral preparations, or natural starvation ensues with tuberculosis unchecked. The widespread and unchecked spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to the decalcified (lime lacking) conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world."

Thus from another authoritative medical source comes confirmation for the use of lime in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Since lime is one of the ingredients of Eckman's Alterative, much of the success attending the widespread use of this result doubtless is due to the combination of this salt to such a way as to render it most assimilable, to ensure no stomach disturbance, and since it contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try.

Eckman's Alterative has effected remarkable results in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis in its incipient and all other forms of the throat and bronchial tubes. Many nasty instances such conditions, apparently, have yielded completely to it.

In case your druggist is out of it, ask him to order, or send direct to us.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It is said that every third person is troubled with catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh indicates a weakened condition of the body; that the secretions of the mucous membranes are quickly affected, and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood and improving your general condition with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal-food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or harmful drugs.

Scott's Emulsion is not a patent medicine, but a concentrated medicinal food, prescribed by the best physicians for forty years.

CZAR SENDS 300,000 FRESH TROOPS AGAINST GERMANS

Austrians Drive Russians from Czernowitz; French Moving Toward Metz.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The German armies are continuing their terrific attacks upon the 200-mile Russian front between the Niemen and Vistula Rivers, but it is officially claimed at Petrograd that the troops of Grand Duke Nicholas are successfully withstanding the assaults. In the Carpathians, because of indications that the Austro-German attacks there are weakening, the Russian troops have in turn opened an offensive and have gained a number of successes with their counter attacks, Petrograd dispatches say.

On the northern front Russian reinforcements have been sent to the region of Augustowo and Plock, over the new military railways which have been constructed since the war was begun, and it is said today that the armies of Field Marshal von Hindenburg are now confronted by nearly a fresh Russian troops, who will take the offensive as soon as the present heavy losses compel them to slacken their attacks.

Claims made by the German War Office that 64,000 Russians were captured when they retired from East Prussia were branded as "absurd" by the Russian Minister of War, Sukhomlinoff today, he reiterating the claims that the Russians effected their withdrawal from German territory without severe losses either in men or equipment.

ADMIT CHECK IN BUKOWINA.

An official statement issued at midnight admitted that the Russians in Bukowina had retired to the north bank of the Pruth River, but the military experts have declared this would have no effect on the Russian campaign in Galicia. The correspondent of the Petrograd Bourse Gazette at Lemberg telegraphed today that the Russians had gained all approaches to Uzok Pass and that two columns were concentrating upon Ungvar (Hungary), the capture of which will permit the Russians to pour into Hungary.

The latest official report of operations issued at Petrograd says:

"On the front, from Niemen to the Vistula, fighting continued on February 17. It was of a particularly desperate character in the region of Augustowo and also in the region from Sierpc to Plock.

"Our left bank of the Vistula (west of Warsaw) calm prevailed.

"In the Carpathians the Russians repulsed a series of persistent attacks on the Austrian front at Svidnik. On the upper San and in the regions of Krakowa, Tuchla, Szenehouya, Wysokow and Klauso, we are continuing to repel incessant German attacks. The Russians are now delivering a series of successful counter attacks.

"In Bukowina, Russian detachments have retreated over the Pruth."

RUSSIANS LOSE CZERNOWITZ.

Today's Austrian report, issued by the Vienna War Office, says that Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina, was taken from the Russians on Wednesday, and that the enemy has been driven beyond the River Pruth.

The Austrian general staff's report follows:

"In Bukowina the enemy has been driven beyond the Pruth. Czernowitz was occupied by our troops Wednesday afternoon. The Russians departed from there in the direction of Novoselica (Novoselitza is at the junction of Pruth and Bakhina rivers). Stubborn fighting continues in the Carpathians. All the Russian attacks have been beaten off with heavy losses to their troops.

"On the Carpathian front from Dukla Pass to the vicinity of Wyszkow the situation is generally unchanged.

"Almost everywhere along this front there is heavy fighting. Numerous attacks attempted by the Russians against the German and Austrian positions have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy. At one point we took 220 more prisoners.

"By our occupation of Kolomea, the Russians lost an important vantage point in them.

"In East Galicia, south of the Dniester, the action of hostile reinforcements from the direction of Stanislau led yesterday to somewhat important fighting north of Nadworna and northwest of Kolomea.

"A battle is progressing in Russian Poland, in Western Galicia there have been only artillery duels and unimportant skirmishes."

FRENCH AIMING AT METZ.

In the Western theatre the French army of invasion in Lorraine has been reinforced and has renewed its drive in the direction of Metz. One of the developments in the fighting in this district was the battle of Norry, north of Pont-a-Mousson. The Germans, after being driven out of Norry at the point of the bayonet, began to bombard the French positions in the town and severe havoc has been caused by the shells.

The field of fighting in the region of Norroy is not far from Gravelotte, where the decisive battle of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 was fought.

Metz is one of the most strongly fortified cities on the German frontier, being surrounded by a triple circle of forts of almost unpregnable strength. One of the objects of the French in pressing toward Metz is to cut off the communication between the German stronghold and the German troops fighting on the heights of the Meuse.

The commande of the German artillery at Norroy, at Thaon and at Cernay shows that the Kaiser's forces have no hesitation in shelling German towns and cities when they think that such a bombardment will result in death of French soldiers.

The artillery duels along the northern end of the battle line continue unbroken. From the North Sea to the Oise River, about 2,000 big guns are firing on both sides.

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING.

The fighting between Rheims and the Argonne forest has been of greater intensity than the tersely worded bulletins indicated.

In the struggle near Beausjour, north of the Rheims-Triaucourt highway, one trench changed hands seven times. In numerous instances French and German soldiers were found deadlocked in each other's arms. They had struggled to kill each other while consciousness was left to them. There was a bitter hand-to-hang struggle in the trenches north of the River Aisne, over a small, sluggish stream flowing in a northeasterly direction in the Aisne. There the soldiers fought with the weapons that came to hand, rifles, knives, swords, bayone, clubs and even picks and shovels which has been used for trench building, scores of dead bodies were found without any bullet wounds upon them.

North of Verdun, on the Meuse, the Germans are trying to win back some territory lost to the French. The battle is being carried on with artillery and small arms.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; then get sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night, when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Advertisement.

BRITISH BLOW UP GERMAN TRENCH

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The blowing up of a German trench in West Flanders southeast of Ypres, where a number of prisoners were taken by the British, is reported in the bi-weekly communication from Field Marshal Sir John French, which was issued by the London Press Bureau today.

The statement mentions severe fighting near Neuve Chappelle in France, which indicates that the Germans have made a gain in that region. Neuve Chappelle lies about four miles north of La Bassee, near the La river and near the La Bassee-Houplouck turnpike.

"The enemy displayed considerable activity," says the report, "during the past few days southeast of Ypres. The fighting on this part of the line was very severe at times. On two occasions the enemy succeeded in occupying some of our trenches, but was driven out by counter attacks. At one place after Germans were left dead upon the field. One of their trenches was blown up and many prisoners taken.

"Upon the night of February 15-16 an attack was made against our line south of the Ypres Canal. On the following night a similar attack was made against our line near Neuve Chapelle. Both were easily repulsed with losses to the enemy. All the ground recently gained has been strengthened and held without difficulty.

"South of the Lys we dealt effectively with the enemy's artillery, whose fire has greatly increased recently.

"Our aircraft carried out valuable reconnaissances, also successfully engaged hostile aeroplanes. One of our aviators attacked two German machines in succession. The first was driven off by our aircraft; the second was brought down by our artillery in the enemy's lines."

Berlin Bars Teas, Potatoes a Luxury

LONDON, Feb. 19.—A news agency dispatch from Amsterdam states that the authorities in Berlin have prohibited afternoon teas in the cafes on the ground that the functions are unnecessarily extravagant. It adds that the price of potatoes has advanced so greatly that the fixed maximum price has been withdrawn. The Bavarian Minister of the Interior has entered an agreement with agricultural banks and societies to purchase corn and other supplies. German taxes are increasing.

THE BATTLE FRONT

Petrograd, Russia: Feb. 19, via London.

The number of head and arm wounds of the men at the front is enormous, for men in trenches expose only their heads and arms. Many hundreds are hit in the head and death does not result from the wound. Occasionally one may see the slightly wounded walk back with heads bound up or arms in slings. Motor trucks loaded with wounded tear along the road back from the extreme front. Perhaps forty per cent. of the wounded are back on the firing line after three months' care and rest in a hospital. It all depends on a man's health and blood. If the blood is pure and good, the soldier gets the first aid, proper treatment and his wounds heal by first intention.

Good blood is everything to every man. It means fresh strong nerves, good digestion, good circulation. Those who have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery marvel at the way it checks blood diseases. See a man today with skin all broken out; see him a few weeks later after using the "Discovery," his skin is all cleared up, eyes bright, and he is contented with himself.

The foundation of good health is good blood. Are you pale? Are you weak? Are you no longer ambitious or energetic? Have you pimples or boils? Do you suffer from headaches, low spirits? Then you are anaemic—your blood is thin, lacking in healthy, strength-giving red corpuscles. Then your blood is impure—and your liver is not up to its task of clearing the blood from the poisons accumulated.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a temperance remedy that will restore to you rich, health-giving blood—a remedy proved by eight-four (in tablet or liquid form). It is a scientific extract of roots from our forests, known by science as those which will best give the stomach, liver and bowels needed help.—Advertisement.

Railroads Plead for Water Lines

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Applications of Eastern seaboard railroads to continue to operate their water lines under the Panama Canal act will be heard by the Interstate Commerce commission daily from March 16 to 31 at Washington, it was announced today. The Pennsylvania, Southern, Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line, Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake & Ohio Railroads are the principal applicants.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking dope, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do their work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

BIG PANAMA FAIR OPENS TOMORROW

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—The Panama Pacific International Exposition—San Francisco's $50,000,000 world's fair, is ready.

Down to the last minute detail of construction and cajolery it is ready. And tomorrow, February 20, 1915, it will be thrown open to the world completed, and on time.

On the stroke of 8 the gates will be flung open. From that moment until 288 days have passed they will remain open. Forty-one nations of the world will be epitomized and the best that is in the States of this country will be brought to a focus.

Two hundred thousand people are expected to join in a triumphal march to the gates of the exposition at the opening.

At noon President Wilson will declare the exposition formally opened. He will press a button that will send a current of electricity over the continent. The doors of the machinery building will open, the machinery will start running, water will gush from the fountain of energy, great guns will roar and flags will blossom out everywhere.

Every street is in a blaze of bunting and San Francisco is ready to entertain the impending deluge of visitors.

SHOE MEN FAVOR 'BUY NOW' SLOGAN

The shoe men today swung into line endorsing the "Buy it Now" movement that has swept over New England since the AMERICAN sounded the slogan.

They said that in the shoe business, as in almost every other line, better values can be secured today than for a long time.

The "Buy it Now" movement has been endorsed by bankers, brokers and business men of every kind. It is designed to start the wheels of prosperity and it does this in half a dozen ways. It puts money in the pocket of him who buys because he buys cheap what must soon be bought at a higher price. It puts money in the pockets of many who now have none, because the merchants must hire new clerks, and the manufacturers must put on new hands. And the money keeps people now out of work, earning, will go on its way again through the circle of trade.

HELP THE BUYER.

The "Buy it Now" movement means economy for the buyer and prosperity for the community.

Among the shoe men Marvin Packer, manager of E. W. Hart and Company, was a strong supporter. "It's a good plan—a fine plan," he said. "It's a good advice as you can give a man.

"By buying now, a man can get a first-class value in almost any line. And by buying now he can stimulate business to new activity.

"In my own particular line, this time of the year is between hay and grass, a dull time between seasons. By buying now, the buyer saves himself money. It is a first-class slogan, and it deserves attention."

M. A. Godfrey, manager of the W. L. Douglas Company, was another.

"Fine," he said. "That's what I think of the slogan, 'Buy it Now.' Get out and save yourself money by buying now what you are going to need in a week or a month or more.

"You not only help yourselves—you help others. For every dollar you spend is the seed of more dollars, to be spent in turn. Buying now will stimulate activity in business lines, with the result that the whole community will benefit. 'Buy now' by all means. Buy now and be glad later on."

GET BETTER VALUES.

M. Weinberg, manager of the H. H. Arnason stores, said:

"It's a good thing. And furthermore, people are taking it up in great style. The slogan, 'Buy it Now' is catching their attention, and they're doing just that.

"They are wise, too. For by buying now they get better values and cheaper than they can get them a little later on. There's no doubt about this."

Favor New Station Near Dale Street

Three hundred persons attended a mass meeting in New Dudley Hall, Roxbury, and voted in favor of a station on the Elevated in the vicinity of Washington and Dale streets. A committee of twelve was appointed to secure signatures to be used next Tuesday at a hearing before the legislative Committee on Street Railways. This hearing will be on a bill introduced by former Representative James T. Kenney providing for the new station.

Pray Tonight for Jews in Poland

A prayer service will be held tonight at the Temple Chabel Sholom, Union Park street, to ask the God of nations "to spare and protect the sorely stricken people in the war zone, and especially the unfortunates in the Jewish tale of tears—Poland."

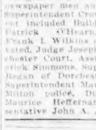
CROWLEY PRAISED BY THE GOVERNOR

Friends of Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, formerly captain of Dorchester station, were highly gratified today at the complimentary remarks made by Governor Walsh at a banquet tendered to the new "Supe" by the Dorchester Tree Club at the Hotel Lenox. The Governor said that he had heard from many places expressions of complete satisfaction with the appointment. The Governor's words formed high tribute to the guest of honor.

Thomas Leavitt was toastmaster at the gathering of about three dozen newspaper men and other friends of Superintendent Crowley. Others present included Building Commissioner Patrick O'Hara, Superintendent Frank I. Wilkins of the Boston Elevated, Judge Joseph Churchill of Dorchester Court, Assistant Clerk Fred Stark, Superintendent Philip Regan of Dorchester postal station, Superintendent Maurice Pierce of the Milton police, District Fire Chief Maurice Heffernan and ex-Representative John A. Anderson.

Make Your Teeth Behave

They will if you give them half a chance.



"It took the film experience of seven toothache to teach me that mere superficial cleanliness was mighty small safeguard against cavities. I'm for Pebeco because it really helps keep my tooth-enamel whole."

Get rid of "Acid-Mouth" and you have conquered the biggest cause of tooth decay. Scientists agree that "Acid-Mouth" causes 95% of all tooth decay.

Pebeco

An Open Letter

(About Bronchitis)

August 2, 1914.

TO THE PUBLIC:

In March, 1914, I became afflicted with an attack of Bronchitis which forced me to remain in bed for two months. The doctor in attendance changed the medicine several times, and instead of improvement I seemed to grow worse. For awhile I was despondent, until my wife read a little pamphlet advertising the "Essence Mentho-Laxene." Discouraged with what I had been using without effect, I was willing to try almost anything that sounded like a cure. The Mentho-Laxene was bought, the syrup prepared according to direction, and before half the quantity was consumed the cough had abated and I was able to get up and get around the house. To make a long story short, I was at work four days after and have never felt any symptoms of the dread disease since. All who are acquainted with Bronchitis will understand how hard it is to subdue. Strong, but then I have recommended it to all sufferers as I would to those who were subject to colds of any kind. In each case the medicine sustained the reputation I had given it, and all were loud in their praises of this truly valuable prescription.

All who may be skeptical in its use can write me, and I will cheerfully give them all the information they desire about my personal signature. Very respectfully, A. CAMPBELL.

2447 Lafayette St., Denver, Colo.

For the benefit of readers: Essence Mentho-Laxene can be obtained of druggists. A 2½ oz. bottle makes a full pint of cold and cough syrup. Full directions are with each bottle.—Advertisement.

MONTPELIER, Feb. 19.—A bill abolishing the office of Attorney-General passed the House and has been sent to the Senate.

STRIKE THREAT IN GARMENT TRADE

A vote for a general strike in the clothing industry in Boston, if manufacturers persist in calling for non-union shops and fascs last night by nearly 2,000 members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America in Faneuil Hall.

Since organized labor of this city took action against the clothing workers for their secession from the United Garment Workers of America, it is alleged that a number of unions have adopted resolutions calling upon the manufacturers to stop dealing with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

It was stated that representatives of the old parent body are now in this city in an effort to re-establish influence here by organizing another union. Thus far they have succeeded in organizing one shop.

The mass meeting voted to declare such shops "scab" shops and declare strikes in them. It was said that some 200 employees are now on strike in various shops.

H. P. WARDWELL OF COLLATERAL LOAN CO. GONE

That Harold P. Wardwell, teller at the Collateral Loan Company, resigned his position last week and has gone to South America, became known today.

Wardwell's flight has put a new complexion on the tangled affairs of a company that for years has been recognized as the clearing house for pawn shops and all redemption transactions in Boston.

No charges had been made against Wardwell and the directors of the company declared today that they did not even suspect him of anything irregular.

A woman in Wardwell's Brookline home told the AMERICAN today that Mr. Wardwell could not be seen, as he had gone away for an indefinite stay.

SAYS WARDWELL HAS GONE.

Mr. Wardwell's house was called on the telephone. A woman's voice responded. Here is the dialogue:

"I would like to talk with Harold P. Wardwell of the Collateral Loan Company."

"Mr. Wardwell is not in."

"When do you expect him back?"

"Mr. Wardwell has gone away."

"I am very anxious to see him. Can you tell me where I can get word to him?"

"Mr. Wardwell has gone to South America and I don't know when he will get back."

Coincident with the flight of Teller Wardwell it was learned today that a special committee of the directors of the Collateral Loan Company, consisting of Clarence W. Rowley, William R. Dewey and Lewis E. Moore, has been investigating thefts from the company funds.

As recently as Wednesday this committee made a report to the full board of directors at a special meeting. Whether this meeting resulted from the alleged hurried exit of Wardwell could not be ascertained.

One of the directors, who did not wish to have his name published, said:

INQUIRE INTO THEFTS.

"The special committee consisting of Messrs. Rowley, Dewey and Moore have been inquiring into the financial affairs of the company for the purpose of discovering the thefts. This committee reported to the directors at a special meeting Wednesday.

"Mr. Wardwell tendered his resignation to the directors last week and left the employ of the company on Saturday. The directors were told that he was going to one of the cities in the Western part of the State where he expected to find work.

"The directors have been doing their utmost to find those who are connected with the theft of $30,000 from the company, but the special committee has nothing definite yet to report, other than what has already been exploited in the newspapers.

Clarence W. Rowley, one of the members of the special directors' committee, said today:

ASSISTED BY WARDWELL.

"I do not believe Mr. Wardwell has run away. He has given us every possible assistance. He has come to see me and has proffered his help and has been ready and willing to consult with me whenever it became necessary.

"I think he is still here. Up to date he has assisted me wherever I have asked him to. His appearance and actions seemed to me to be consistent with entire innocence. I last saw him here in my office a week ago today."

In spite of the optimism expressed by Mr. Rowley, other business associates of Wardwell declare that he seemed greatly discouraged and depressed of late. They said he was "a nervous wreck."

The Girl Who Talked Too Much

A Fable for the Foolish

By ANN LISLE

THERE was once a girl who longed to go out and have a good time. She fretted with almost equal fervor to have the world think she was going out to have a good time.

It seemed to her that the summits of popularity and success could be reached by being seen in the lobby of a gaily dressed theatre or a gaily decked restaurant. And so she spent all her savings on a very wonderful evening gown that should make her the gayest of the gay throng in the gay restaurant!

And then no one invited her out.

But she was not of the stuff of which failures are made. Not she. And so when all her married friends and the other girls she knew asked her what she was going to do on a certain holiday eve she replied "Oh, I haven't decided yet. I've been invited to a little theatre party, but I've seen the play twice already. I've been asked to a dance, but the man who wants to take me doesn't foxtrot. And then I've been asked to a house party in the country, but I would hate to bury myself out of town. So I may go to a studio dance and dinner if I find it's to be properly chaperoned."

On hearing of the many invitations that had come to her the people who had meant to invite her to make a fourth at bridge or help receive at a little tea, or to go with them to a dinner dance for which they had an extra ticket, promptly decided that their trifling invitation would be wasted on so popular a girl.

And the girl who wanted to seem popular sat at home and wept. For the gown on which she had spent all her savings hung in the closet, and she had not enough money left with which to buy a more satisfying dinner than a box of crackers and an apple.

MORAL: Seeming too popular often frightens away the invitations that might make you feel popular enough to enjoy life.

What Every Woman Wants

(Her "Own" Home)

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service

A SLIM, rather old-fashioned little girl person—mother and father had fulfilled the early plans of their dreams in a tiny brown house on its very own plot of ground miles away from the "old folks," married a debonair young chap with none of the money from the sale of his own brains in his pockets, but with an inexhaustible spring of it in the home-nest. And after the golden circle of the honeymoon was completed and twirled away to join all the rare moments that have gone into the limbo of vanished things, she often little person with her full and terrible indove young husband blew back—to the home-nest. And they ruffled and puffed about a bit and then settled down to eating real things again instead of the love-land fare of strawberries and whipped dreams. And, of course, her new mother was a regular mother, you must understand, who gave her a share of the warmest spot of her heart and loved her mightily, and the girl's transplanted little person thrilled and sang with the knowledge of this. But, by-and-by, her wings drooped and she had dashes of moods and tempers and a little fretful line that grew between her smooth brows—a mar in the harmony of her happy little face. And the puzzled other bird took her chin in his fingers and demanded the why! "That's an insanity flown from your petting, Pseudos. And"

"It isn't any such thing," blurted out the Lady-bird. "I want a house of my very own—a little house; any house—even a funny house! Everybody is dear and good to me, SO good to me; but it's just like I was a visitor dropped in to tea—and after a while I'm afraid I'll be a fighting visitor! There isn't anything I own except you and my own hair—and nothing of my own to do save smile and stand around. It isn't my kitchen! And if we stay, boy-dear, I'll pass by the visitor stage and show my interest in things by trying to run them—and then you will feel like Pandora with all your hopes flown from your treasure-box! And that we cannot get along will never mean that we are not good people. So let's don't stay. For every woman—the satin-clad one who lives among lovely colors and sounds and has grown quite used to the glitter of many gems, and the plainer one who works for the things that she cuts and wears, all dream the same dream—their OWN home—any home rather than somebody else's where she drifts about like a shadow or materializes into a war!" And so it is!—NELL BRINKLEY.

FLORENCE turned to study him.

"Will Mr. Johns be here?"

"Mr. Johns?" queried Nettleton, innocently.

"Yes; I've written him seven times and I've not heard even one solitary word—not even when I wired him."

Nettleton snickered behind his hand. "Yes—he'll be here!"

"Has he been at the office?" asked Miss Cole.

"Well, no—he's been on a sort of holiday!"

ON A HOLIDAY

"Oh, George—I've guessed it—you've invited me up here so you could surprise me with a birthday dinner for dear old T," gushed the little coquette.

Nettleton fairly snorted. "Ha, ha! Yes, that's it. Especially for dear old T!"

"Well, what's the heavenly joke?" demanded Miss Cole.

"Nothing. Only with Van and T both claimants for your heart and hand, I was wondering how you'd manage them."

Florence blushed, and then remembering the unanswered letters, blushed still more to find herself blushing. "Nonsense! They are just two silly boys—and I don't find myself caring a fig for either."

"No?" queried Nellie catching Florence's hand and examining her ring. "Stop it! That ring was given me by my uncle—as a consolation—for being an old maid!"

"It's beautiful—but we are wasting time," said Mrs. Nettleton briskly. "You talk to George while I dress, and—" But beholding the calm alacrity with which Miss Cole prepared to follow her suggestion, Nellie concluded other than as she had begun. "I mean, suppose you come along with me, dearest—and we'll have a nice old fashioned chat."

As Florence started up the stairs humming happily at the thought of seeing her truant lover at his birthday dinner, Nellie leaned over the balustrade and hissed, "Enjoyed your little kiss—didn't you George?"

"Run along girls," said he pacifically. "And I'll bring Florence's suit case."

"Fine—and if Nellie doesn't mind, I'll hold your shaving mug," declared Florence.

But Nellie did mind.

"I think, Mr. Nettleton, you had better shave in the bathroom," said she. And Florence's unmistakable laugh greeted the ears of the returning butler.

"My God, that laugh! Oh, it couldn't be—it couldn't!" he ejaculated, with more firmness than faith.

"Sh-h-h-h-h, Mr. Boggs, sir," sounded an all too familiar voice, and as if that were her cue and signal of approach, Coddle sidled into the room holding one hand behind her. "It's got a secret for you, sir," she said smiling and screwing the little knot on top of her head a bit tighter as she drew down the skin of her forehead and pursed up her mouth like a bunny's to do so. Then as her head ideal moved away from her in alarm she spoke words to detain him.

"Ho, hit haint habout me, sir. A gentleman came hup from Mr. Nettleton's office just now, sir. But 'e couldn't wyte. Hit was habout your mail."

"What's that!"

"Yes, sir. 'E says that every bother dye 'e's been ha-puttin' them on the marster's desk—thinking as 'ow the marster would bring em 'ome ter yer'——

The butler surprised even the stolid soul of Coddle when he turned toward the stairs with doubled fists. "And to hold back my mail, did he? Well, I'll show him—contract or no contract!"

Coddle ran after him and threw her arms about him. "He, Mr. Boggs, sir—Mr. Boggs, sir, don't!"

"Keep away, will you? Keep away! Ah you've got them—my letters—give them here!" And then as Coddle skipped away Boggs found the letters a magnet to draw him on, and on he followed as Coddle fled giggling around tables and chairs. But finally the damsel eluded him and got back of the table.

"Wots they worth to you, Mr. Boggs, wots they worth?" She pursed her lips and leaned across the table. "Worth nothing!" Hand them over!"

"I knowed they was from another woman"—— whispered Coddle dropping them on the table in awe at the menace in his tone. She dabbed at the lids of hfer eyes with the corner of her apron and raised her voice in a wail of lamentation. "I knowed by the color of them and the awest smell that they was from some young 'uzzy."

"No, they don't—they come from my—oldest daughter," replied the irrepressible Johns.

Coddle's wail subsided and her poor features gradually spread themselves in a grip of happiness. She began to edge toward him again as hope sprung again in her breast.

"Do they now? Dearie me! Hi just want to arsk you something—most particular. Wot hever become of them three ladies?" A silly simper lit her face and her tongue pressed one corner of her mouth in the irritating intimation of shrewdney adopted by the weak-minded.

"Three ladies? What three ladies? queried John in bewilderment tot and absolute.

"Wy them—at you was married t —at different times, sir, "giggled th lady.

"Oh, those! Coddle—I'll tell you They came to violent ends—all t them'" answered Johns in a voice a from the sepulchre.

A MAN AND HIS WIFE

Isabel Offers to Pay for a New Overcoat for John and He Lets Her

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

CHAPTER X.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

IN spite of Isabel Hamilton's petty tempers and inconsiderateness, she loved her husband dearly. Therefore she was conscious of a pang of anxiety when on the following evening as they sat together in their little parlor, he laid down his newspaper with a sigh. Dinner had passed off pleasantly, and neither of the pair had referred to the events of the previous night, although it is to be doubted if Adelaide's theories were forgotten by the man, or if there had been an hour of the day when the thought of his pleasant personality of Henry Dennis had not recurred to the wife. Yet other matters called forth the above-mentioned sigh. The sound made Isabel look up from her book.

"What's the matter, dear?" she asked. "Aren't you well?"

"Oh, yes," he took her. "I'm well enough. But no matter how hard I try, I cannot lay aside money as I ought to."

"But, dear John," the wife said tremulously, "you are not running into debt, are you?"

"Of course I am not!" he assured her. "But it does cost a lot for us to live, and we ought to be saving something. I never get ahead a bit but what there's something I've got to pay right away. And this week my life insurance falls due."

"How much is it?" Isabel asked.

"Thirty-two dollars. I will pay it, of course. But I did want a new Winter overcoat. You know, I didn't get one when Sis Adams married, I so grudged spending money for something that I did not actually need. And now my caller tells me I can get one for one-half of what I would have had to pay earlier in the season."

"I see," said Isabel.

She seemed to be reading for the next few minutes, but she was thinking very hard. Each week John had given her an allowance for housekeeping. Clothes was not a good cook or manager, as Isabel had watched her carefully, keeping strict account of books and groceries bought, and seeing that there were not wasted.

Thus she had been able each week to lay aside something saved from her allowance. She had told John that she was doing this, and he had smiled and told her to keep that money for herself. Once he had praised her for her frugality, although he had forgotten it when he wondered how they used so much milk each day.

But she would not let herself think now of his unreasonableness—only of how much she loved him and of what a good husband he was. Had he not taken her to the theatre last night? That must have cost him four dollars, and it was just to give her happiness. It was not his fault that Mrs. Simmons had made so much of him. Women were silly over handsome men—especially women who were no longer young.

This thought warmed her heart with an appreciation of her own youth and attractiveness. Her self-satisfaction made her love John better. At that moment he turned to her, saw that she was not reading, and laid his hand on hers.

SHE HAS A LONGING TO HELP HER HUSBAND

"Don't look so sober, little girl," he urged. "I did not mean to worry you. We'll get on all right. I was only a little blue over the way in which our needs keep pace with my earnings."

"I know, darling," sympathized the wife. The passion of unselfishness, which is at once the virtue and vice of the mother-sex, thrilled her. Was not this man her own dear husband, and was it not a wonderful thing to be able to help him? Last night she had thought that if she was going out in society with Ida Ferris, and was to meet such men as Henry Dennis, she might get some new things.

Yet, would not her mother, up in Boston, think it a sin to buy new clothes when her trousseau was not half worn out? She would not greatly her own vanity—she would help John instead. Back in her mind was the thought that John might wonder if Adelaide Simmons would have helped her husband like this. Dennis had admitted to Isabel last night, when she questioned him that Adelaide's husband was "not dead—only not mentioned"—and that the couple were divorced. Now, if that man had as he may have been—had had a wife who would help him!

She glowed with love and happiness as she rose, and, standing by her husband's chair, ran her fingers through his hair.

"Darling," she said, looking down upon him tenderly, "I have a little surprise for you. You are to have your new overcoat."

"What do you mean?" he asked, puzzled.

"Just this," she said, dropping down upon the arm of his chair. "I have saved a little money, you know, from my housekeeping allowance. And with it I am going to pay your life insurance this time. There! Won't that be fine? And with the money that would have gone to the insurance—and what is needed beside added to it—you are going to get your new overcoat!"

He could not allow her to do such a thing, he protested. What did she think he was? The idea of his letting his little wife pay for his insurance! Why, it was outrageous!

JOHN PRAISES ISABEL FOR HER GENEROSITY

"But the money came from you first," she reminded him. "And you know you are carrying the insurance for my sake."

Yes, he knew that the money came from him, but he meant her to keep that for herself, to spend as she pleased.

"And I don't need anything," she insisted. "Now think, you dear old some, what do I need?"

He did think, and appreciated that her clothes were pretty, that she had a pleasant home, that she had him to support her. Moreover, were he to die, the insurance would go to her. And he was ashamed to go about in his shabby overcoat with his pretty wife. It was not fair to her. He had no right to allow her to be even the least bit ashamed of his appearance.

"Darling," he said at last, drawing her down to him, "you are the best, most helpful, loving wife a man ever had. And because you do love me, my own, I am going to let you lend me that money—for of course, I shall pay every cent of it back, Isabel. So, dearest, since you really beg me to accept your generous offer, I will do it."

And she, dimpling with the joy of self-sacrifice, said, "Thank you, darling!"

SHAW PLAYS AT THE TOY THEATRE

Gertrude Kingston, as an interpreter of Shavian humor, gave the audience at the Toy Theatre last evening some really delicious moments.

The two plays offered were "Great Catherine" and "Overruled," neither of which has been given in America before. "Great Catherine" is a four-act play in Shaw's best vein and full of favorite satire upon the British pomposeness and self-sufficiency, in the person of a young English captain.

Catherine the Second, Empress of Russia, a German housewife with the proclivities of a female Don Juan and the saving grace of humor, makes an amazing charcter in a play.

Miss Kingston has caught all the possibilities of the part and gives them to her auditors with an able touch that no one characteristic seems inconsistent with the others. She could be love mad with the young English captain turns out to be an exquisitely ridiculous and somewhat indecorous farce through which her amorous intentions, sense of humor and sovereign dignity are blended in just the right proportions.

Lumsden Hare as Prince Pationkin, the drunken, thoroughly diplomatic and temperamental ex-lover, gave an excellent and sustained interpretation with just the right amount of color to balance the sometimes dis-concerting humorousness of Catherine.

Arthur Spearman was a satisfactory young Englishman, and made the most of his opportunity in the throne room scene. The surrounding cast was well balanced and gave adequate support.

"Overruled," the one-act comedy that closed the evening, is obviously a smack at those who "do what they do because it's the custom," and with his usual power Shaw punctures the custom with satire.

It was interesting to see Miss Kingston as a twentieth century matron; Mrs. Gregory Lunn, with a sentimental husband, an erotic lover and herself devoid of all interests save respectability, knitting and the dinner gong. Not quite without humor was the part, probably because the author was unable to keep it out. So restrained and unconscious, however, does Miss Kingston make this humor that the English wife knits complacently on under the most disconcerting muddle of flirtations and her lines are made to characterize without sacrificing any of the Shavian satire. Lumsden Hare played the part of the husband, Gregory Lund, with rare distinction, getting over the force of the Shaw moral nicely and naturally.

Dorothy Wetherald made a very attractive Mrs. June, giving a well-balanced portrayal of the part. The remainder of the company was acceptable.

Sixth Hoof Disease Case in Waltham

The sixth case of foot and mouth disease in Waltham within ten days has been discovered on the farm of James and Frank Lynch in Forest street. The herd of twelve cows will be shot. City Veterinary Rudolph Sibley thinks the infection came from the clothes of cattle dealers.

'Peter's Pence' to Be Given Sunday

As is customary on the first Sunday of Lent the annual collection of "Peter's Pence" will be taken up in all the Catholic churches of the Boston diocese. In his pastoral letter announcing the collection Cardinal O'Connell asks the various congregations to be as generous as possible this year as it is the first year of the pontificate of Pope Benedict XV and besides the revenues of the church in the countries of Europe will be seriously curtailed in consequence of the war.

Pythian Knights to Greet Loomis

Brigadier-General Lewis J. McKenzie of Boston, commanding the uniform rank of Knights of Pythias in Massachusetts, has issued a call for a special assembly of the brigade at the American House tonight for a reception to Major-General William H. Loomis of Grand Rapids, commander-in-chief of the uniform rank. On the following day the annual business assembly of the officers of the Massachusetts Brigade will be held in the same hotel.

Oyster Contest at National Theatre

An oyster opener's contest, for the championship of New England, will take place at the National Theatre, Tremont and Berkeley streets, tonight. Contestants from the leading hotels and restaurants will take part, and prominent hotel men will be the judges. A handsome medal will be awarded to the winner.

Must Be Neutral in Washington Tribute

The School Board has decided to hold a strictly neutral celebration in honor of Washington's birthday in the schools today and they have forbidden the display of toy soldiers, paper swords or guns. Washington will be referred to as a great statesman and patriot, but his career as a soldier will be passed over lightly.

TERESA BANDANZA, East Boston girl, fifteen, who has been missing from home since Monday.

The East Boston police are today continuing their search for Teresa Bandanza, fifteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gesualdi Bandanza of No. 511 Sumner street, East Boston, who has been missing from her home since Monday. The girl disappeared while she was in charge of her father's bakery at No. 223 Sumner street, East Boston. Before leaving she took all her clothes from her home.

SAVE WOMEN IN CLAREMONT FIRE

CLAREMONT, N. H., Feb. 19.—Mrs. Mary P. Marcott and her daughter Annie, were saved by firemen as Mr. and Mrs. Irving Walker were themselves fire men when the Marcott home, No. 125 Broad street early today.

Mrs. Marcott and her daughter were the second floor, were cut off from the front door by flames. They started for the back door but became confused in the smoke and were nearly at the point of collapse when firemen, entering the back way, took them out. Mr. and Mrs. Walker escaped from the first floor.

The firemen were delayed on account of ice, 12 falling to mount.

HEAL YOUR SKIN WITH RESINOL

It Stops Itching Instantly, and Clears Away Unsightly Eruptions.

Instead of using Lotion and Ointment, a cream or ointment-stocking, with all its shortcomings, simply wash the sore parts with Resinol Soap and hot water, dry, and apply a little Resinol Ointment. The itching stops INSTANTLY, sores no longer have to be scratched, crusts become soft, pale, and healing sets in at once. That is because the Resinol Soap and Resinol Medication do not clog the pores, but cleanse them, soothe the surface, relieve the inflammation, and leave the skin in perfect health quickly, easily and at little cost.

Prescribed by doctors for twenty years, and sold by every druggist. For free trial, write to Dept. 8-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Advertisement

Were $35 $45 and $55 16.50 Were $35 $45 and $55

MOSTLY ONE-OF-A-KIND

At closing time last night, we began changing the prices on the tags of 60 women's winter suits which we bought to sell at $35, $45 and $55. At 8:30 this morning the tags were all marked $16.50. The suits all came from the best makers—came in the regular course of trade for selling at $35, $45 and $55. They are up to regular SLATTERY standards in every particular. Many of them are advance style garments. All of them are suitable for wear during the next two months and in the fall.

to the lover of Motion Pictures

YOU have probably some strong feeling regarding serial pictures. Most likely you are very fond of them—delight in the continued association with characters you learn to love,—are happy to follow the plot and try to explain the mysteries,—oh so hard!

And yet you may be one of those many who do not like serial pictures because you think to miss ONE section is to lose the whole point of the story.

You may have had such an experience in the past or have heard from friends who informed you. But note this:

Here is an entirely new kind of serial—which you can begin to enjoy at any time. As with a good friend, you merely regret you hadn't known him before! But that's no bar to knowing him now!

Don't imagine you have to refuse yourself the delights of the great combination of authors, actors and incidents in the Exploits of Elaine.

Each episode in the Elaine films and stories, is distinct in itself—stands apart and is completely intelligible and fascinating to the newest comer. It is connected to the other episodes only by the characters and general problems before them.

The stories as you doubtless know are by the great Arthur B. Reeve, so highly featured by the Cosmopolitan Magazine. They are about the renowned detective Craig Kennedy. They appear each Sunday in the

Do you realize what a wonderful triumph these Pathe pictures are?

There is Arnold Daly (a Frohman star) whose photograph is seen at the top right. He plays Craig Kennedy.

There is Pearl White, the heroine, whose success in the "Perils of Pauline" made her the talk of two continents.

There is Sheldon Lewis, great character actor—playing a leading part.

KINNON MEETS LAFAVOR TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

ILL MCKINNON, Roxbury's stout-hearted middleweight, will try and teach Bob Lafavor of Brockton a few new ring tricks when they clash in a twelve-round bout before the Only A. C. in North Abington tonight. There are few boxers in this section of the country who know as much about the fine points of the ring game as McKinnon. He has been exchanging blows with the leading men of his weight in the country during the past six years and has mastered most of the fine points of the manly art.

Lafavor should make things interesting for McKinnon. He is a big, strong fellow and a hard puncher. He has also had plenty of experience in contests within the hemp ropes.

"Young" Brusso of the North End will meet "Young" Pleasse in Whitman in the semi-final tussle of eight sessions. "Young" Griffin of Dorchester and "Young" Ryan of Brockton are scheduled to furnish the festivities in the opening bout of six stanzas.

JACK CURLEY, who is at the head of the syndicate which is promoting the Jack Johnson-Jess Willard bout, which will be decided in Juarez, Mex., on March 6, is planning to work up an interest in the match by staging two other twenty-round encounters the same week. Dispatches from Juarez inform us that "Gunboat" Smith and Jim Flynn will meet in a twenty-round whirl on the afternoon of March 5, while Al Wolgast and Gene Delmont have been signed to battle on the evening of March 5.

THERE will be an amateur boxing tournament in Brockton this evening and some lively matches are looked for.

SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

To the one who picks out the best team in the National League, using the names of players who took part in one or more National League championship games last season, I will give a box seats for any game played by the Braves on home grounds this season—Saturdays and holidays included—the winner may select.

And,

To the one who picks out the best team in the American League, using the names of players who took part in one or more American League championship series last season, I will give a box seats for any game played by the Red Sox on home grounds this season—Saturdays and holidays included—the winner may select.

* * *

Answers will be filed as received and when the contest closes they will be examined. I will ask three or four of the big league managers to help me pick the winners of the contest—that is, I will ask them to name the best team that could be picked in the American and National Leagues, and with these expert selections as a basis the contest will be judged. Of course, if more than one picks the same combination, the prize will be awarded to the first received.

Send as many answers as you like, but a coupon must be used in every case.

Vin Campbell, who used to be a member of the Reds and jumped to the Feds will not play ball this year. Vin alternates between baseball and the automobile. This is his automobile year.

* * *

The editorial writers on the newspapers take delight in firing a shot at the ball players. Here is a clipping from a Detroit paper:

"Along the line of how ball players are abused nowadays by greedy magnates it is well to consider that this week a Chicago team will be forced to board common, ordinary Pullman cars, travel all the way to California, see two expositions, scenery, enjoy the sunshine and climate, act as guests of honor at banquets by the exposition officials—and play a little base ball on the side. It's an outrage, that's what it is."

* * *

Here is a story one that was sprung by Jack Hayden, manager of the Louisville Club, at a meeting of the Winter League.

"The first year of the American League in the East the Baltimore club had a street parade before the opening game there. Two of the players who rode together in an open carriage were 'Tacks' Latthiore and 'Germany' Schmidt. On the way to the grounds the carriage passed under an American flag. Latthiore stood up and saluted the flag. Schmidt refused to do so. This made 'Tacks' sore, and he got into a red-hot argument with 'Germany.'

"The players kept up the argument after they reached the ball park. Finally, Latthiore silenced Schmidt by yelling at 'Germany':

"'I'm going down to see the Mayor and have you translated.'"

* * *

Although the Cardinals may be without the valuable services of Magee, Perritt and Yingo, Manager Huggins is going ahead with plenty of confidence. His pitching staff will include Dook, Sallee, Griner, Perdue, Robinson, Niehaus and several youngsters. Sayder, who was a rank failure last year, will do the bulk of the catching, with Roche to play the role of understudy. Jack Miller, Huggins and Beck will cover the bases, with Butler, Daringer, Herr and Nash completing for shortfield. The outfielders are Dolan, Wilson, Crusie, Biggert and Long.

* * *

The New York American recently ran a contest for boys between ten and fourteen years old in which the youngster who wrote the best letter telling why he should be chosen mascot for the New York Yankees would be given the position. More than five hundred boys applied for the job and there were some very funny letters received. One of the funniest received follows:

"My name is Don Redek. I leave in Yorkville. I am 14 years of old. When I was 2 years of old I caught the hooping coff, measles and croup. When I was five years of old I got diptheria and scarlet fever. When I was 10 years of old I got my adnoys and appendix cutten out, and last year I had my big toe frozen, which had to be cut off. All my life I had hard luck, but I ain't looking for simpathy, but here's the point: our luck gotta change some time, so is the Yanks' luck gotta change. See the point, 50-50, or, as my grandmother says, things equl to themselves are always equl."

McVea Picked to Win.

HAVANA, Feb. 19.—Jim Johnson and Sam McVea finished their training today for their fight tomorrow. Many wagers are being laid on the battle. McVea is a strong favorite over Johnson.

BOSTON SURE OF FLAG, SAYS MACK

Braves vs. Red Sox for the 1914 world's championship. This, according to Connie Mack, is the way the National and American Leagues sum up at present, according to Percy Proctor, the former Tufts shortstop, now an instructor at Hill School, Pottstown.

The Athletics' leader thinks George Stallings is about the best judge of young players in the country. He thinks also that "Rabbit" Maranville is the best shortstop in the business.

"I thought Barry was a wonderful shortstop," declared Connie, "but Maranville is in a class by himself. Everybody knows baseball as well as any man who ever played the game."

Mack declared that the Red Sox look the best in the race for the American League pennant, and with the best pitching staff in the world, the best outfield in the league. "Sensation" in Scott and a "comer" in Janvrin, they should win easily.

He also admitted that the Athletics had not got the start last season, they very probably would not have finished in the lead.

Johnson Makes Safe Landing at Tampico Under Heavy Guard

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 19.—Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight champion, who is to fight Jess Willard at Juarez on March 6, landed safely at Tampico, according to messages which he dispatched to the promoters of the fight here.

He is expected to arrive at Juarez on Sunday. From Tampico he probably will take the Cardenas branch of the Mexican railways, which runs directly west to San Luis Potosi, and thence travel northward to Torreon and Juarez.

The Carranza representative here said that Johnson probably would be given safe conduct to the Villa lines.

Woodland Golfers Now Own Club Course

Members of the Woodland Golf Club of Auburndale will be playing on their own course this season. The directors have been successful in purchasing all the land now occupied by the club. No changes will be made in the present course.

Three trustees will hold the property of the club for the protection of the bondholders, and the income of the club derived from dues will be pledged to pay the interest on the bonds. The treasurer will send bonds to subscribers on April 1, together with check for interest on money from date of payment to April 1.

Goulett Is Winner Over Polious on Mat

Peter Goulett defeated Jim Polious in the wrestling match at the Grand Opera House. Goulett secured the first fall in forty-five minutes, but as Polious was injured as a result of the toss, he could not go on with the match, which was best two out of three falls.

Scholastic Splutters

WITH five track meets on the schedule for this afternoon the followers of this branch of scholastic athletics will have their fill. Deep interest will manifest in the events held this season, and because of the fact that the big H. A. A. schoolboy games are but a week away the performances of the boys will be watched with greater interest than ever.

* * *

THE track team of English High is picked to defeat the Dorchester High representatives at the Manchester doors, but a hard set of runners are developing at Dorchester, and Coach Flaherty of the English High track team has been working hard with his boys lately, and the followers of the latter are apt to show their full worth this afternoon.

* * *

THE High School of Commerce track team will have a hard proposition in defeating Medford High at the Commerce outdoor quarters this afternoon. Fort Hunnewell, Hoppers Eye have been defeated this season and bear mentioning their close point totals.

* * *

THE track teams of Newton High and Brighton Latin High will run a set of dual meets tonight at the Boston College High gymnasium and both attractions will draw a fair following. Boston College High has some very formidable men and is picked to win out.

* * *

THE battery candidates for the Volk-mann School baseball team will be called out on March 1 in the Harvard baseball cage. The team has a very bright outlook, with Pillsbury, Lock and Davidson, pitchers; Angell, wall, catcher; Irvine, first base; Davidson, third base; Weber, Smith-ton and Rogers, outfielders. Other veterans that are available are Brown, Allen, Stearns and Silberfeld are some of the new candidates that are likely to cause trouble. The schedule is arranged by Manager Alva Morse follows:

March 4—Dorchester Latin at Allston. H. S. March 6—Brookline H. S. at Brookline. March 11—Football at Roxbury. March 13—Powder Point at Milton.

March 18—Quincy Tech at Allston. H. S. March 20—Cambridge Latin at Allston. H. S. March 25—Roxbury Latin at Allston. H. S. March 27—Somerville High at Somerville. April 1—Tentative. April 3—Mechanic Arts at Allston. H. S. April 8—Boston Latin at Allston. H. S. April 10—Brookline High at Brookline. April 15—Newton High at Newton. April 17—Commerce at Boston College gymnasium. April 22—Somerville High at Somerville. April 24—Medford High at Medford. April 29—Mechanic Arts at Boston. Latin. May 1—Dorchester High at Dorchester. May 6—Newton High at Allston. H. S. May 8—Commerce at Boston College gymnasium. May 13—Brighton High at Brighton. May 15—Roxbury Latin at Roxbury. May 20—Cambridge Latin at Cambridge. May 22—Quincy Tech at Quincy. May 27—Boston Latin at Allston. H. S. May 29—Dorchester High at Allston. H. S. June 2—Somerville High at Somerville. June 3—Medford High at Medford. June 5—Brighton High at Brighton. June 10—Waltham High at Waltham. June 12—Somerville High at Somerville.

THE Greater Boston interscholastic meet at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow should be one of the best indoor meets of the season. English High, Medford, Brookline, Somerville, Lynn Classical, Mechanic Arts, Boston Latin, Dorchester, Weymouth, Lynn English, Norwood, Belmont, Chelsea, Watertown, Woburn, Eridge, West Roxbury, Malden, Lexington and Wellesley have entered in the meet. In the private school meet held in connection with the other games, Boston College High, Dummer Academy, Milton Academy, Powder Point and Dean Academy have entered meet.

Entries for the Greater Boston interscholastic meet follow:

Mixed dash—Parker, High; Bonnie, Classical; Simmons, Belmont; Fay, Tech.; Kendall, Latin; Lally, A. A.; Fitzgerald, Tech.; Chelsea, Bonnan; Dorchester, H. S.; Segal, Latin; Bonnan, H. Bernard, S. D. Mattoonal, Latin; Bonnan, Segal, Latin; Bonnan, Segal, Latin; Bonnan, Seg

ATLANTIC FLEET PARADE IS OFF

New York, Feb. 19.—The Atlantic fleet, now assembled at the Virginia capes along the Atlantic coast, will not pass in review before the President of the United States south of the Atlantic coast of the United States.

Less than two months ago the fleet received orders to proceed to Cuba for Winter manoeuvres. At the same time it was the intention of the officials in Washington to send the battleships and smaller war craft through the Panama canal, which was opened February 15 last to a big naval review in San Francisco.

The naval parade was postponed until some time in March owing to the unsettled conditions and the cost of such a further step. It is a common opinion among naval officials that the parade will not be held for a long time to come.

The concentration of the battleship vessels of the American navy in Caribbean waters has been attended by an increased increase of activity in the nation's navy yards.

In strange contradiction to the usual Winter working conditions in the various yards this month every effort is being made to speed up work, rather than decrease the activities.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels in New York has not finished the New York Navy Yard. A visit there today will complete his inspection of the yards on the inland front, one end to the other.

Happy Twenty Night Here
All Headed for Big Event

Allan T. Abess and Peggy Scollins, who will dance the fox trot at the Newsboys' ball tonight.

Tonight's the night! Happy Twenty Night. Tonight the Boston newsboys make merry at Convention Hall. The annual ball of the Happy Twenty starts this evening at 8 o'clock.

It's going to be some time. There's a Mardi Gras carnival, a cabaret, a dancing exhibition by Boston's greatest dancers, a grand march with a lot of new variations and a thousand other things that have never yet been seen at any Boston dance.

From 9 o'clock until 2 there will be a constant program of excitement. There'll never be a letup. The newsboys are just as capable when they run a dance as they are when they push out extras, war or baseball, or anything else.

Everybody that amounts to anything in this part of the world will be at the Happy Twenty ball.

All the regular people will be there, of course, but the big feature of the convention Hall tonight. Convention Hall is in Lexington street, right off Eastern avenue, and it's easy to find. You won't be in for more than the liveliest times that Boston ever knew.

There's something unusual on the program from 8 o'clock until the ball gets under way. If you want to be a happy wife, here's your chance.

THAT "HAPPY HOP."

Don't forget the place—Convention Hall. Get off the cars at Mechanics Building or Lexington street. Tickets will be sold at the door. Anybody can get in on the fun.

Among other things Allan T. Abess and Peggy Scollins will give an exhibition of the "Happy Hop," the latest new dance. Don't miss it.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

There is a strong possibility that the Vanderbilt Cup and the Grand Prize races scheduled for the Panama exposition next week will be decided on a combination asphalt and wood track. A portion of the track is in good shape while the other is in such condition that it was advisable to lay planks over the surface. There is strong hopes, however, that if the weather clears in season the regular racing surface can be used.

J. H. Johnson, manager of the Buick Boston Company, returned yesterday from a trip through the southern states looking decidedly improved as the result of his rest from business trials and tribulations. While away from Boston Mr. Johnson had the pleasure of attending golf tournaments at Pinehurst and Palm Beach and the record at both places was of a high standard. He says he ready to solve the serious problems that always arise at motor shows.

J. W. Adams, New England distributor of Pierce-Arrow motor cars, returned yesterday from a business trip to the factory at Buffalo where he found everything in a decidedly busy condition. While at Buffalo he was entertained as the guest of honor at a number of his show display.

J. H. Abeltshaw, New England distributor of Cadillac-Knight cars, is also regarding his visit in the South. According to last returns he is having a rousing good time and expects to return to Boston in season for the opening of the motor show.

Tailors to Appeal for More Work

The Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers' Association has voted to co-operate in the movement to promote work. More than twenty tailors have agreed to send out circulars asking their customers to take advantage of the dull season and have their work done early.

HUNT AUTHOR OF CROWELL LETTERS

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 19.—Despite the fact that foul play has been intimated in connection with the death of E. Francis Crowell, leader of the anti-gambling crusade in North Providence, whose body was found in a Woodville pond, Medical Examiner Brazil has decided not to hold an autopsy.

The medical examiner declares that Crowell committed suicide. This decision is backed by the police, and so far as the authorities in North Providence are concerned the official investigation of Crowell's death has ended.

Members of the Crowell family, including his widow and nephew, Albert Crowell, declare that he was slain. Now that the North Providence authorities have decided to abandon the investigation the family may ask a State probe of Crowell's death.

Friends and relatives, led by Albert Crowell, are continuing their investigation and soon hope to have enough evidence to show that Crowell did not take his own life.

J. J. Neild, who lives a short distance from the Crowell's auto was found, which was over a mile distant from where the body was discovered, declares he saw the car standing in the road between 7:30 and 8 o'clock Friday night.

J. Jensen, who resides a short distance from Neild, says he saw the machine at 9 o'clock that same evening. He says the automobilists, in order to get to his house, had to get out of the car and remove a red lantern which had been placed in the middle of the road to mark a dangerous spot.

This lantern, he says, the persons in the automobile placed on the top of his mail box, which is fifty feet from the side of the road. This lantern was found yesterday still lighted.

County Chief of Police George H. Hill of North Providence declares that an autopsy will be held. He was asked if there was any water in the lungs of the dead man. He declared he thought there was.

Chief Hill looked up the AMERICAN reporter who found a handkerchief marked M in the pond where Crowell's body was found, and asked if the initial was M or W. He declared that the handkerchief found on Crowell's outside pocket as the body was being removed from the pond.

He states that another handkerchief found on Crowell's person was marked with the letter C. Arthur Crowell says his uncle never had any handkerchiefs marked with the letter M and that he never carried them in his outside pockets.

Clarence Hall, stenographer in Mr. Crowell's office, declares that she was the last person to see him alive. She says he took her from his office in his automobile Tuesday night at about 7:30 to the postoffice, where she mailed some letters. She declares he started for his home in North Providence at about 7:30.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON FEBRUARY 19, 1915

BOSTON AMERICAN
50 AND 52 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, FEB. 19, 1915.

Let Us Help the New Haven if the New Haven Will Help Itself

It is well enough to validate the stock of the New Haven which was issued in violation of our laws if we can be reasonably sure that the violations will not be repeated or worse—that they will not be encouraged by our act of validating them. The Public Service Commission recommends the validation of this stock largely upon the assumption that the present management of the New Haven intends to obey the law.

The AMERICAN shares with the commission the belief that Mr. Elliott intends that his road shall be law-abiding and intends to tell the truth about the affairs of the railroad whenever he says anything about it at all. But this is a government of laws and not of men, and our general laws cannot be based upon our confidence in individuals. Moreover, Mr. Elliott is merely an agent of those really in control of his railroad, who could, if they regarded his notion of honor as too fastidious, remove him as quickly as they appointed him. There is no evidence that Wall Street might not resume its old control of the New Haven when the whirlwind which it has sown has passed away.

There ought not to be any desire to handicap or to retard the resuscitation of the New Haven Railroad. If the validation of its stock is necessary to a sound refinancing of the corporation, every reasonable facility for permitting the validation ought to be granted, provided the managers of the New Haven sincerely intend never to disobey our laws in this respect again. But if they are sincere in this intention, they ought to be willing to assist in the enactment both in Massachusetts and in the other New England Commonwealths, particularly in Connecticut, of legislation which would assure us against the temptation to renewed lawlessness. It was under the pretence of exercising corporate power granted by the State of Connecticut that many of the lawless acts were committed by the New Haven in the past. Therefore, these Connecticut powers should be made to conform more nearly to our Massachusetts laws.

The State of Connecticut is not in the habit of refusing to the New Haven Railroad ANY legislation which it demands. There is not the least doubt that the Legislature of Connecticut would grant to the railroad a change in its charter which would limit its powers and tend to prevent the kind of orgies that have brought it so low, to the injury, not only of Massachusetts, but also of Connecticut.

It ought also to be provided in our general laws that minority stockholders should have a right, when the majority is about to do some act which is either oppressive or beyond the power of the corporation, to appeal to the court for an allowance out of the funds of the corporation with which to contest the acts of the management.

Mr. Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven Railroad, made a very enlightening statement concerning this phase of stockholder's rights. Said Mr. Mellen:

"One difficulty in which a minority stockholder finds himself when the railroad corporation, acting through its directors, is about to do something which the minority feels is wrong and would be prohibited by the courts, is the question of expense and litigation. It is tremendously costly for private individuals to litigate with a great corporation, and minority stockholders know that the cost of such lawsuits would greatly exceed any prospective profits on their individual holdings.

"The minority stockholders ought to have a right, when they dissent on a question which touches the good faith of the directors concerning the vital interest of the corporation and of the stockholders or any large group of stockholders, to ask the courts to compel the corporation to pay the expenses of an appeal to the courts, provided they satisfy the court that their prima facie case is good and not frivolous and not brought in bad faith.

"This is not an extraordinary proposition. If a wife today, under our law, sues her husband for separate support or divorce, she can ask, when the suit is filed, to have her husband compelled to pay the expenses of the suit against himself. This is obviously fair, for in so many cases the wife would be quite helpless without such a right, and the stockholders in their relation to the corporations are just as helpless."

The AMERICAN would go even farther than Mr. Mellen in this respect. The citizens themselves, whether stockholders or not, ought to have the same right as stockholders, when a railroad is about to do something which is not only illegal, but, as in almost every such instance, is harmful to the general public interest, to stop the illegal act and to punish the would-be violators of the law. If minority stockholders and the people of the State had the right to challenge the legality of the acts of the public service corporations without personal expense, there would be very much less danger of continued lawlessness in this Commonwealth.

IF THE NEW HAVEN WANTS ITS STOCK VALIDATED, IT OUGHT, AS A CONDITION PRECEDENT, TO OBTAIN THE LEGISLATION LIMITING ITS POWER AND TEMPTATION FURTHER TO VIOLATE OUR LAWS BY STRENGTHENING THOSE LAWS HERE IN MASSACHUSETTS AND IN CONNECTICUT. This is the suggestion of the Public Service Commission, and it is absolutely sound.

Beating the air with all its feeble might
Eager to try its wings so small and new,
Pain lessened in the quickening joy of flight.

Called by some force to tread the wider way
Out of the knowledge it had made its own,
Think you that soul was not full glad to pay?

Mysteries of Science and Nature

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"KINDLY explain what causes the earth to rotate.—S. B. P."

Of course you mean to ask, what started the earth's rotation? Once turning, there is no difficulty in seeing that it must continue to turn unless some force interferes to arrest its motion.

Science, at present, is unable to give a definite answer to this question. Perhaps it never will be able to give such an answer. It is a part of the great problem of the origin of the earth and of the whole solar system, which consists of the sun; eight planets, including the earth; some twenty-five or twenty-six satellites, or moons, belonging to the planets; hundreds of planetoids; a large number of comets, and many swarms of meteors.

All these things together make up a gigantic mechanism of which the sun is the motor, or governor, which keeps it running. The entire system revolves round and round the sun and each of the planets rotates round its own axis, like a spinning ball, the direction of both the general revolution of the system and the particular rotation of the individual planets being the same, with certain exceptions, which can be accounted for as due to particular causes.

Since all the motions within the solar system are linked together and have a certain concord, it is to be inferred that they must have had a common origin. We may say, then, that the earth rotates because a motion of rotation was impressed upon it when it came into existence, together with the other members of the system. Revolution around a common centre (the sun) and rotation around their own axes are effects of a great fundamental, mechanical law, controlling all of the planets.

The sun itself, which exceeds in mass or quantity of matter hundreds of times all the other members of the system combined, also obeys this law and rotates on its axis in the direction in which the planets revolve around it.

Whatever force set the entire system into revolution was, no doubt, the fundamental source of all the revolutions and rotations that we find among its members. That force acted when the system was created. According to the general belief of astronomers the start was made in a nebula. A nebula is a cloud of gases, or perhaps a cloud of dust or of small meteors, which is capable by condensation of being shaped into stars or suns.

The great French mathematician Laplace invented a celebrated theory to explain the origin of the solar system which is known as the Nebular Hypothesis. He supposed that there was once a nebulous mass (and the telescope and photography show many such now in the sky) which, under the attraction of its own particles for one another, contracted and assumed a globular shape. In consequence of some lack of balance among the motions of the particles in the nebula the entire mass, as it contracted, got into rotation, somewhat as the water in a vessel sets itself into a whirl when a stopcock is opened at the bottom. Some irregularity in the flow starts a motion in a particular direction, and then all the water begins to move that way.

As the nebula continued to contract it became more and more dense at the centre, until a globular condensation was formed there which ultimately became the sun. At the same time the rotation of the entire nebula increased in velocity, as the laws of mechanics would require it to do, as a result of the shrinking of the mass, and then the centrifugal force flattened it out into the shape of a disk. When the rotation became still swifter rings of matter began to separate off from the whirling disk, and these rings, when they broke, rolled themselves up, so to speak, into nebulous balls, which ultimately condensed into the earth and the other planets.

The globes, or planets, thus formed would rotate in consequence of the original rotational force of the condensing nebula out of which they came, and the direction of their rotation would, in general, accord with that of the original nebula. The central mass, the sun, would also share this rotational tendency.

Now you see that in order to explain why the earth rotates we are compelled to go back to the beginning of the solar system, and the explanation that we then find is a hypothetical one which seems exceedingly probable, but cannot be said to be surely and unquestionably correct. But anyhow, as Galileo said of the earth: "It does move."

More Truth Than Poetry

New Styles for Old

WHEN Henry J. Demosthenes was down to make a speech
He slipped some pebbles in his mouth and strolled along the beach.

And there he talked until his voice prevailed above the roar
And rumble of the wind-tossed waves that beat the shingly shore.
Demosthenes had things to say, and it was worth his while
To cultivate a vibrant voice and a convincing style.

WHEN Daniel Webster had to make that crushing smash at Hayne,
For many long and weary hours he sat and racked his brain;
He burnished every single phrase, to make it keen and clear,
He even put long pauses in where friends of his could cheer.
And then at its delivery he practiced on the quiet,
And judging by the best accounts the effort proved a riot.

BUT now if old Demosthenes was down to make a speech
He'd merely read ten pages from the Athens Daily Screech,
And Webster, called upon to land a real redhot retort,
Would quote a dozen volumes of a Treasury report.
For oratory nowadays, though wholly on the bum,
Reduces effort to a most efficient minimum!

"Aren't Girls Silly," She Asks, "to Judge a Man by His Height or His Appearance"

By DOROTHY DIX

ARENT girls the silly geese?

They use so little real intelligence in judging a man, and measure him by such idiotic standards, that the wonder is that many of them have the luck to get good husbands.

Lately I have had an amusing and a pathetic illustration of this, in a number of letters I have received from girls who say that they are in love with men who are everything that a man should be except tall. They write that these men are moral, upright, industrious, intelligent—the very sort of men that make the best husbands—but that they hesitate to marry men who are shorter than they are, for fear their friends will ridicule them.

Isn't that enough to make you laugh—or cry? Think of anybody having little enough sense to judge a man by his inches, as if he were a bolt of ribbon, and the more of him there was the better bargain you got for your money! Think of choosing a husband by his height, as if he were a telephone pole!

Let me tell you one thing, girls: It isn't the distance a man's head is above the ground that counts. It's what's in that head. Giants are nearly always fools, and some of the greatest men the world has ever produced have been little men. If you were a tall girl you would have felt perfectly foolish tangoing with a sawed-off man like Napoleon. "Bobs" commanded a million men, great grenadiers who could almost have put him in their pockets. Kipling is an undersized man, and Barrie isn't much bigger than a boy. Jay Gould and Harriman were both little men, but they juggled with railroads as children play with toys.

You could go on all day mentioning the little men who do big things, for, after all, nature isn't as unjust as we think. She is pretty apt to even up things, and when she makes a man who is short on stature she is more than likely to make him long on brains. And conversely this is also true, and when she constructs a man on grand architectural lines, oftener than not she skimps on the inside furnishings of his skull.

Exceptions to the Rule

Of course there are a few men who are handsome and tall and brilliant, just as there are a few women who are beautiful and intelligent and unselfish, but these darlings of the gods are exceptions to the rule. As a general thing, your godlike Adonis is as dull as a meat axe, and your living picture lady has nothing but her looks to recommend her.

Also the small and insignificant looking man is far more likely to be ambitious and energetic than the big, handsome man, because he knows that he has got to get up and hustle in order to attract attention in the world. Nobody is going to sit around admiring his looks, and in order to get the glad hand he's got to turn out a star performance. In the race of life I'd always back the little man to win against the big, handsome animal, who looks as if he had a walkover.

If women knew what was good for them they would all be making eyes and sighing after little men and homely men, instead of matinee heroes, six feet tall, and with black mustaches. For just an all-around proposition, the handsome man makes the most undesirable husband.

To begin with, he is spoiled to death by other women, and is sure to think that he can't be expected to waste all of his charms upon the society of a mere wife. Likewise he is certain to appropriate the major part of the dress fund of the family for his own adornment. He also expects his wife to spend her time admiring him, instead of him admiring her, and, worst of all, he remains young and handsome long after his wife's good looks have faded, and she has to stand for knowing that everybody is wondering why that godlike creature ever married that little shrimp of a woman.

On the Other Hand

On the contrary, the handsome woman who marries a homely little man has a monopoly of the family beauty. Her husband admires her, and flatters her, and delights in dressing her up and showing her off, and never gets over wondering how such a splendid creature ever condescended to tie up with him. Which is a most salutary and comfortable state of mind for a husband to be in.

The little man is the preferred matrimonial risk, girls. But there's only one warning I want to whisper in your ear, and that is watch out and see if he's inclined to be tyrannical. Truth compels me to state that is the little man's one drawback. Just because he is small he feels that he's got to assert his authority a little too loudly in order to show that he is the head of the house. A big man isn't afraid that anybody will think that his wife bosses him. The little man lives under a continual dread that people will think he is henpecked and to show that he isn't he is frequently unduly autocratic.

Barring this fault, the little man makes an ideal husband, and the girl is foolish who turns the man who loves down because he isn't six feet tall and hasn't shoulders like a prize fighter. Cupid isn't a recruiting sergeant who selects men for the holy estate according to their size.

Science for Workers

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q.—"Will man, with the evolution of science, ever be able to control the natural forces? Is it possible that evolution will bring about a change in the form of the human body? Or is evolution working toward the extinction of physical force and physical organism?"—Lily B. Fenston, Sparrow Nest, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

A.—These are important questions, worthy of serious thought. Nikola Tesla told me, and he was in a serious mood, that "man will in some time draw electricity directly from Nature's store." This was at the World's Fair in Chicago.

If this is accomplished, man will control natural forces, for a current of electricity is far and away the most valuable of all human possessions save air, water and food. For a flow of electricity is potential and has the possibility of light and heat. Light, heat and power are next to air, food and water. Solar heat has been used to generate thermo-electricity, and small motors have been actuated with this current, but this process has not been exploited commercially so far as I know. Tesla, no doubt regarded that electricity would be taken from Nature's vast reservoir directly, not by first using heat. He did not indicate any theory or plan, and he told me this in 1892.

If such men as Thomson, Edison, Tesla and Steinmetz cannot "tap Nature," we shall have to await further evolution of science. Even solar-heat-engines, using heat only, and not electricity, are not in general use, as one would think.

The great one in the Pasadena ostrich farm is dismantled. I went up to see it several years ago, and it was pumping water by means of solar heat, received on mirrors and by them reflected upon boilers in a steam plant. But the real problem is to take electricity directly from Nature's lavish store.

There is no danger of humans all running to bralen, a la H. G. Wells' plan. Physically the Harvard College folk are running out. The big eugenic research back in Cambridge, Mass., discovered that "Harvard graduates will have only sixteen male progeny in six generations."

But, then, we all may evolute away all theory of atrophied organs. Mere useless parts now, but necessary when we were fishes and apes. Aquatic creatures in the away-back Silurian times, and abnormal beings in tree tops in very recent.

In-Shoots

The wise public official seldom courts newspaper notoriety after election.
